I can't even describe how much I miss you. Your voice, the hey baby, your touch, our morning talks on my way to work, us telling each other it's going to be alright. I screamed the other day calling your name, but you never answered. I felt your spirit this morning and started looking at your pictures on my phone. I saw just how tired you were and have been for a minute. I'm glad you are not hurting anymore and are now at rest. I love you mother, our hearts beat together as you took your last breath. Rest on my love.
